THE QUEEN'S COLLEGE,
OXFORD.

21. Dec. 1934.

My dear Professor Steindorff,

I am delighted to get your letter, with its most kind wishes for a Merry Christmas, which are most cordially reciprocated 'von Haus zu Haus', together with hearty wishes for a very happy and prosperous New Year.

I owe you the deepest apologies for not having written to you before about the Anibeh material, in reply to your questions. I now enclose both your original questions and the answers to them, as well as the required drawings. I see that there are a few small matters still outstanding, which I am writing to Miss Moon about. If there are any further matters outstanding, it will I think save time if you write direct to Miss Margaret Moon, Egyptian Section, University Museum, Philadelphia, about them. I am delighted to hear that the manuscript and plates of the first volume of the Anibeh publication are now in the press.

Oxford is a wonderful place, and I am of course very glad indeed to be here. There is plenty to do! Among other things I have recently taken over the editorship of the Journal of Egyptian Archaeology. I arrived here at the beginning of October, and have had one whole term here, living mostly in College in order to get to know its ways. We are very pleased with the Davieses' house; getting settled in there is a slow process which is not yet finished. I have two pupils, both Americans - one of them the younger son of James H. Breasted, who is reading with me for Honours in Egyptian. Next term I shall have an English pupil as well.

With heartiest greetings, I am

Yours ever,

Battiscombe Gunn
